

I want to add my protest to many other people about the nullification of the FCC Do Not Call List. We still get many solicitations from charitable groups, but I do not wish to return to the days of getting Sunday afternoon calls to buy this or that. Now that we have a better chance of having our personal identity information in the hands of criminals, I don't want to give people (including potential thieves) more of a chance to fleece me.